Risk Management Plans (RMPs)

Risk management is good business. No facility owner or operator wants to harm employees, the public or sensitive environments, especially as a result of improper management and use of high hazard chemicals. In addition to supporting business sustainability, chemical risk management is the subject of many laws and regulations. The Federal RMP regulations have been in existence for nearly three decades and many operators of existing facilities have been managing RMPs. Whether you need to develop a new program, to meet a revalidation deadline or want help with ongoing compliance requirements, Condor can assist.

Process Safety Management (PSM)

The federal and state OSHA PSM programs are in many respects quite similar to federal RMP programs. However, the PSM and RMP hazardous chemical lists are slightly different. A facility can be covered by an RMP but not a PSM and vice versa. Both federal and state OSHA require that a facility have a PSM program in place for covered chemicals, but there is no requirement for registration with either agency.

California Accidental Release Prevention (CalARP) Program

Many states have their own chemical risk management requirements that follow the federal RMP program. In California, the regulations are referred to as the CalARP Program. Often, state requirements apply at lower threshold quantities than the federal RMP. Condor's chemical risk management work spans several states, including extensive experience in California. Condor can help with statespecific chemical risk management requirements at your facility.

in between, Condor can provide services to help you through this process. Condor can facilitate and document your Process Hazard Analysis (PHA) or Hazard Review, update your hazard assessment and offsite consequence analysis, develop prevention programs, conduct compliance audits, perform mechanical integrity audits and prepare 5-year program updates. As a result of sound program development and implementation by facility staff and Condor, and commitment by the facilities to comply with the regulatory requirements, few corrective action notices or citations have been issued.
